PART II

Why Backyard Chickens Are a Trend

CAROL ANN SAYLE MAY 18, 2009

Backyard chickens trendier than Teslas among the elite

What can we learn from the affluent's obsession with backyard chickens? As the Silicon Valley elite invest in heritage chickens and fancy coops, modern agriculturalists can take note of what this trend means.

Backyard chickens have been hip for a while, but building them a $20,000 coop takes the trend to a whole new level

Ogden's ban on backyard chickens irks urban millennials

More than 1% of all U.S. households now raise chickens; the USDA estimates that by 2019 urban chicken flocks will increase by 400%. An attorney by trade, Mormino answers questions daily on her popular Facebook page for her more than 743,000 followers.

Don't Be the Last Person to Get Backyard Chickens

PROS & CONS OF BACKYARD CHICKENS

PROS:

- Pest management, specifically flies, ticks, roaches, and even mice
- Mostly quiet, especially compared to dogs
- Environmental friendly fertilizer
- Divert food scrapes from landfill
- Eggs
- Provides pet companionship

CONS:

- Coop requires maintenance to ensure no smell
- Noise while laying eggs, some hens are noisy
- Attracts predators
- Like any pet, chickens cost money to maintain (food, bedding, coop) and may require veterinary care (parasites, injuries).
- Like any pet, chickens get loose and chickens are abandoned.

Common requirements of a pilot program

- Company must provide a contact person and a general manager
- Company pays an application fee
- Requirements for meetings between the company and the locality
- Information that the companies must give to scooter riders
- Required safety feature for the scooters are set out
- Company must provide locality with periodic reports
- Sets a limit on the number of scooters any company can bring into the locality.

Major components of HB 2752

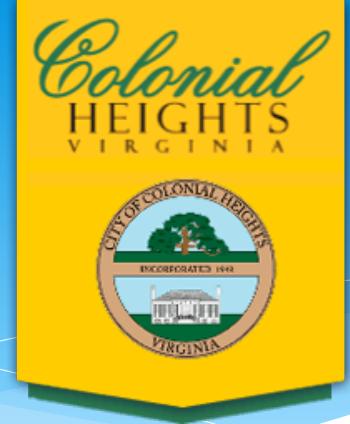

- Allows localities to prohibit the use of motorized scooters on sidewalks
- Prohibits the parking of scooters in ways that would be in the way of pedestrians.
- Sets penalties of up to $50 for violations of any scooter laws.
- Some provisions can be strengthened by localities

NEEDED ACTIONS

- By December 31, 2019, any locality that thinks that scooters may come its way should adopt an ordinance or enact a pilot program.
- VML should adopt a formal VML position that any future State legislation must continue to assign regulatory responsibility to local governments.
- Localities with existing pilots should meet several times prior to the 2020 Session to discuss what they are finding in their pilots, so that they will be ready to proceed united if further legislation is introduced in 2020.
